THREE MODES OF COMMUNICATION

Interpersonal	Interpretive	Presentational
Two-way communication with active negotiation of meaning among individuals	One-way communication with no recourse to the active negotiation of meaning with the writer, speaker, or producer	One-way communication intended for an audience of readers, listeners, or viewers
SpontaneousUsually involves exchange of informationMeaningful	 Reader, listener or viewer interprets what the author, speaker, or producer wants the receiver of the message to understand 	 Presentation of information; not exchange No direct opportunity for the active negotiation of meaning exists
Participants observe and monitor one another to see how their meanings and intentions are being communicated and make adjustments and clarifications accordingly	• Interpretation differs from comprehension and translation in that it implies the ability to read, listen or view "between the lines," including understanding from within the cultural mindset or perspective	To ensure the intended audience is successful in its interpretation, the "presenter" needs knowledge of the audience's language and culture
 Speaking and listening (conversation) Reading and writing (text messages, messages on social media, letters) 	 Reading of authentic texts (websites, stories and other literature, articles, signs) Listening to authentic texts (speeches, messages, songs, radio news, ads) Viewing of authentic materials (videos, movies, presentations, TV shows, commercials, news, plays) 	 Writing (messages, articles, advertisements, flyers, brochures, short stories, reports, scripts, Power Point presentations); Speaking (telling a story, giving a speech, TV or radio news, drama presentations including skits, presentation to jury)

Objectives of a communicative approach:

- to provide activities that require students to go beyond their traditional role as responder to the teacher's questions;
- to provide opportunities for students to use the language in meaningful interaction with others, and to negotiate meaning in authentic contexts in interpersonal communication;
- to provide opportunities for students to engage in self-expression in interpersonal and presentational communication;
- to provide opportunities for students to hear and read a great deal of comprehensible and authentic language in interpersonal and interpretive communication;
- to provide opportunities for students to engage in real-life tasks
- to provide a nonthreatening environment in which students' affective filter is lowered
